

WARRIOR TRAILS

By Robin Newcomer

Happy New Year and welcome back to the grind! While some Warriors found times of boredom during vacation, there were two that spent hours filled with adventure and excitement, with never a dull moment.

Cindy Biggers and Mr. Edward Bancroft both took to the air during our two week reprieve.

Cindy happens to be enthusiastic about jumping out of airplanes — with a parachute. The blonde senior first ventured into the unusual hobby about a year ago. Introduced to the idea by a friend, Cindy began with four to five hours of basic training. In these short hours she learned the important essentials of jumping: how to maneuver and control herself in the air and how to fall correctly.

WHEN THE instructor decided that the class was ready to take the big step they boarded an airplane. For their first jumps a radio was attached to the jump suit so the jumper would be sure of what to do, step by step. After five more jumps she was on her own and now Cindy, along with a small group of people, hires a small plane. A parachutist, according to Cindy, has complete control because the actual jumping is very fatiguing." But, the energetic jumper added, "It's all worth it."

Mr. Edward Bancroft is also adventurous, only in a flying way. For 10 years he has followed this hobby for excitement and relaxation. Mexico heads his list of destinations as the most unusual. The industrial arts instructor has also flown as far north as Francisco and as far east as Houston, Texas.

During the Christmas vacation, Mr. Bancroft, who also rates skiing as a favorite hobby and sport, flew to Alpine Meadows, Lake Tahoe and then to San Diego. Trail's End!

CINDY COMMENTED on her hobby, "In parachute jumping you must be prepared to devote a lot of time

Garden Checklist

1. Berry vines, grapes and strawberries may be planted now. Your nurseryman can recommend varieties.
2. Rhododendrons and azaleas may be planted now for spring bloom. Try the Southern Indicas, or Sun Azaleas for sunny garden spots.
3. You can prune roses now, but wait a couple of weeks to prune fuchsias.
4. Plant annuals for late spring bloom. The list includes stocks, snapdragons, pansy, calendula and many others.
5. If you failed to plant ranunculus bulbs last fall you can set out seedling plants from nursery flats now

Honor Band Will Meet At College

El Camino College will host the 100-piece Western Division Junior College Honor Band Friday and Saturday. Representatives from junior college bands throughout California and Arizona are members, according to Lewis Hiigel, EC band instructor. The two-day honor band program is in preparation for a concert before the national convention of the College Band Directors Association which will meet at the University of Michigan Feb. 7, 8, and 9. Only student from El Camino who will play in the honor band is Bruce Short of Torrance. The honor band will also meet in San Francisco in late January for another two-day series of rehearsals. Hiigel said. Rehearsals have been scheduled for Friday night and all day Saturday. "It promises to be a full schedule of rehearsals for the honor band members," Hiigel stated. "And it also gives us a chance to show off the new music facilities at El Camino."
